Seven arrested after embassy altercation

RCMP spokesman Sgt. Marc Menard said seven men were arrested inside the Libyan Embassy after people were granted access to the embassy and then allegedly began causing property damage. "It appears a common assault to an embassy employee may have occurred," said Menard. The embassy on Metcalfe Street has been the frequent scene of street protests in recent weeks.

Hydro Ottawa leaks cash

► Document shows agency spent thousands on Sens box seats ► Opposition demands action

Ontario's Liberal government likes to talk about protecting hydro ratepayers but does nothing to stop lavish spending on entertainment by local utilities, the New Democrats charged yesterday.

The NDP released documents obtained under freedom of information showing Hydro Ottawa spent almost $30,000 last year on box seats at Ottawa Senators games.

The government has banned such spending by provincial energy agencies, but Premier Dalton McGuinty washed his hands of the Hydro Ottawa situation because the utility is municipally owned.

Slain woman fondly recalled

► Friends and family gather in Orleans to mourn young woman killed in isolated south-end motel ► Jessica Riopelle died a week after her friend Scott Ledoux was stabbed to death

JOE LOFARO
@METRONEWS.CA

About 200 people filled up the seats of the chapel at the Orleans Kelly Funeral Home and more crowded into the corridor yesterday to say goodbye to their "dear angel," Jessica Riopelle.

The 23-year-old was killed inside a south-end motel on Bank Street on March 26. A 34-year-old man, Patrick Dunac, is charged with second-degree murder.

Many who attended the service were young men and women around Riopelle's age who came in groups of four and five. They consoled each other and helped wipe each other's tears during the service.

"I wake up praying that for just one more day I could watch her reach out and mend someone's broken soul, rescue an abandoned animal or play with a child."

KAREN RIOPELLE, MOTHER

"I want you to know the bond we share will never be broken. You will always be my best friend," said Riopelle's older sister, Chelsea, during the service.

She remembered her sister as a beautiful, free-spirited person who would go out of her way to help others.

Riopelle's mother, Karen, also eulogized her daughter, expressing her personal grief after losing her beloved daughter.

"I wake up every morning, hoping to hear her voice or see her beautiful face, her smile that overwhelmingly lit up every room," said Karen, struggling to compose herself.

After the service, red rose petals were scattered in the parking lot outside the funeral home where Riopelle's casket was carried by pallbearers.

The city has been "listening intently" at public meetings on proposed bus route cuts and might reverse some of them, transit commission chair Diane Deans said yesterday.

Transport Action Canada's David Jeanes said that target make cuts inevitable somewhere.

No May-bes: She's off TV

► Elizabeth May loses bid to join leaders' debates ► But Greens fight on ► Green party Leader Elizabeth May says she'll appeal to Canadians to put pressure on the other party leaders and the TV consortium in an effort to change their minds.

Elizabeth May has been thwarted in her last-ditch effort to convince the courts to give her a podium at next week's televised leaders' debates.

But the Green party leader is not giving up yet. Federal Court judge

Marc Nadon refused yesterday to make an emergency ruling on the case before the debates get underway. The short period of time wouldn't have allowed the court "to perform its duty in a satisfactory manner," Nadon said.

It was a body blow for the Greens, who got a major blast of publicity when

May participated in the debates during the 2008 federal election.

The Greens will pursue the matter in the Federal Court of Appeal, even though the case can't be heard before the debates, May said.

But she'll also be talking to her lawyer about whether there are "any legal avenues" that would allow the Greens to have the matter heard in court before then.

The consortium that runs the debates insists only parties with seats in the last House of Commons can participate.

The English-language debate is on April 12. The French-language debate will take place April 14.

Tears as women ejected from Tory event

Two women have been ejected from a Conservative event for perceived ties to the Liberals — a move Michael Ignatieff calls "un-Canadian."

The Liberal leader cites an incident Sunday in which the women were ordered to leave a Tory event in London, Ont.

One woman, a 19-year-old student, broke into tears after she and her friend were forced out of a rally by an official, who then ripped off their name tags and tore them, a newspaper said.

The official claimed to know via Facebook that the pair had links to the Liberals.

Another newspaper cited an incident in which a volunteer who helps homeless veterans was turned away from a Harper rally in Dartmouth, N.S.

When asked about the incidents, Harper appeared to lay the blame at the feet of his campaign workers.

"Staff runs our campaigns and I can't comment on individual matters like that," he said in Quebec.

"Hundreds and hundreds of people are coming to see our campaign."

WHO'LL BE PM?

Iggy tells Quebec: You choose

Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff is asking Quebec voters to determine who'll be the next prime minister.

Ignatieff travelled to separatist Bloc Québécois territory in central Quebec yesterday in pursuit of his bid to unseat Stephen Harper's Tories.

The Liberal leader has been casting the May 2 election as a two-horse race, a fact of life he says Bloc Leader Gilles Duceppe has accepted.

Duceppe has noted that either Harper or Ignatieff would occupy 24 Sussex Drive.

"Even Mr. Duceppe understands that," Ignatieff said. "So what we've got to say to Quebecers is, you've got to choose here, folks."

Harper's style not pretty, says Layton

Jack Layton took aim yesterday at Harper government scandals.

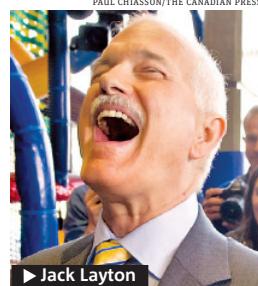

The NDP leader provided a laundry list of alleged Conservative misdeeds, including the latest revelation that Stephen Harper hired a senior adviser who had five fraud convictions.

The prime minister has said he knew Bruce Carson had one conviction, but not others.

Layton said he doesn't believe Harper and he claimed most Canadians don't, either.

He said in Winnipeg: "Canadians are right to be asking: 'If Mr. Harper wins this election, how long will it be until the next Conservative insider is charged with fraud?'"

And just to emphasize the point, he repeated his entire condemnation in French rather than alternating between languages as he does most often.

The barring of opponents from Tory rallies and tight background checks on those who do get in are the "signs of a closed, controlling approach," Layton said.

"I think it says something about Stephen Harper and his administration, and it's not pretty," he added.

PMO apologizes

London West Conservative candidate Ed Holder told a London radio station he found Sunday's incident regrettable.

► "The Conservative party, through the Prime Minister's Office, has issued an apology to the two students who were asked polately, but clearly, to leave — but it's still wrong," Holder said.

"In fact, sometimes you get folks who are a little overzealous and they think they're doing the right thing and, frankly, that's really unfortunate."

Holder said he has been told the prime minister is willing to meet the students. AM980/AM980.CA

MAY'S DEBATE EXCLUSION DOES DISERVICE TO VOTERS

By FRED RINNE, QMI AGENCY, April 1, 2011

"It is a common sense proposition that anyone who received a million votes has a right to be heard... To exclude [May] is to invite yet another examination of why we as a society delegate to television networks the right to decide issues like this."

Elly Alboim, Associate Professor of Journalism and former Parliamentary Bureau Chief for CBC TV News

"The Green Party, led by Elizabeth May, is the one political party clearly committed to averting the catastrophic consequences of our continuing to treat the Earth as mere dirt beneath our feet, so it is imperative that she be allowed to debate."

Let May In

Ottawa Citizen, March 30, 2011

"Democracy demands that the media simply relay Parties' positions without attempting to control the message. Excluding the leader of a party that garnered 1 out of every 15 votes in the 2008 federal election is just plain wrong"

-Cal Millar, President of Channel Zero.

"Let Elizabeth May in the debate. She's the vinegar that brightens up the vegetables."

Rick Mercer, via Twitter

"The decision by the broadcast consortium to exclude Green Party Leader Elizabeth May from the 2011 leaders' debate is mystifying... The broadcast consortium should first apologize to May and reverse its decision."

Vancouver Sun Editorial, 30 Mar 2011

"It is time for the people of this country to stand up and let the media and the politicians know that an election is a time for people's voices to be heard and Elizabeth May speaks for a lot of people in this country."

Judy Rebick, Sam Gindin Chair in Social Justice and Democracy at Ryerson University

"It's bad enough that the Greens got nearly a million votes last election yet got no seats. It's insane that they can't even get on TV. This is UTTERLY outrageous."

-Andrew Coyne, national editor of Maclean's magazine, via twitter.

Dictator using civilians as shields: Rebels

Libyan government forces unleashed a bombardment of rebels outside a key oil town yesterday.

NATO says a third of Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi's heavy weapons have been destroyed.

But rebels say Gadhafi's forces changed tactics in the western city of Misrata by moving tanks and other heavy equipment to civilian areas to prevent pilots from targeting them.

A doctor in Misrata said Gadhafi's forces have been placing heavy weapons near civilians there for the past two weeks.

Hassle-free offer made to Gadhafi allies

► Quit Libya's tyrant and you can keep your cash and freedom, say U.S. and Britain ► Meanwhile, movie star Angelina Jolie greets refugees

It's a sweet deal diplomats hope Moammar Gadhafi's family and top aides will jump at:

If they publicly withdraw support for the Libyan dictator's regime, the restrictions on their assets and travel plans could be made to vanish.

The U.S. Treasury and Britain's Foreign Office have spelled out the details of the proposal, and discussions are now underway at the European Union.

Gadhafi's seven sons, a wife, his daughter, two cousins and other allies who have served him for years are all being given a chance to escape blacklists and reclaim billions of dollars of seized funds.

The EU will decide next week whether to lift a travel ban and asset freeze imposed on Moussa Koussa, the former Libyan foreign minister who escaped from Tripoli, flew into Britain and is now providing information to intelligence officers.

The U.S. Treasury on Monday removed sanctions it had imposed on Koussa. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beware email scams: Experts

► B.C. bookseller, Best Buy, Air Miles among Canadian victims in hacker theft of millions of email addresses

An online bookseller in Victoria is the latest victim of a security breach involving an American email marketing company.

In an email to customers, AbeBooks says it has been warned by Texas-based Epsilon, which handles the company's email, that email addresses of some AbeBooks clients have fallen into the hands of an unauthorized person. Epsilon says a rigorous assessment determined that no other personal information was compromised.

The breach was first revealed last week, when Epsilon cautioned retailer Best Buy and other clients that millions of customers' names and email addresses had been hacked. Account information was not exposed, the company said.

Experts say that without passwords and other sensitive data, email addresses are of little use to criminals. But they can get past a spam filter and be used to craft dangerous online attacks.

AbeBooks urges clients to be cautious if they are asked for personal or account information in an email. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oceans. Five

Staking out Virgin territory

Billionaire adventurer Sir Richard Branson plans to travel to the deepest parts of the world's five oceans in a single-person submarine. The Virgin Atlantic founder and fellow explorer Chris Welsh will take turns piloting the solo craft over the next two years, Branson said yesterday at Newport Beach, Calif., where he unveiled his latest business venture. Virgin Oceanic Expeditions extends the Virgin brand from outer space down to the depths of the oceans, but the adventure also has a scientific purpose, Branson said, and he is working with ocean research groups. Eventually, however, the plan is to build a larger submarine that can hold more people and offer trips to tourists — for a sizable fee.

TAKE A LEAP: SAVE THE FROGS

If you're tired of saving the whales, why not try saving something completely different?

Save the frogs! World Save the Frog Day is April 29, and if ever a species needed a hand, it's the Kermit's of the world. These days, it definitely ain't easy being green. More than 200 species of frog are now extinct, and we'll be down to no frogs in no time if we don't do something.

Did you know our increasing appetite for frogs' legs alone takes 100-million frogs out of the wild each year?

Or that Atrazine, a pesticide, turns male frogs into female frogs at only 2.5 parts per billion? And it's only one of 18,000 pesticides registered in the U.S.

You name it, it's a threat.

Frogs are hunted for their legs, but also for the pet trade and lab dissections. Bullfrogs, native to the eastern U.S., unfortunately have the meatiest extremities, so they are shipped all over the place. When they escape into the wild they take over, and are now the alpha frogs in 15 countries, muscling out local species.

Not only that, two-thirds of imported bullfrogs carry the deadly chytrid fungus, which further contributes to the wipeout of local frog populations.

Do I even have to make the case that frogs are cool? Is there a man out there who isn't carrying around an inner boy who used to catch frogs, name them, carry them in their pockets and use them to scare girls?

If that's not cool enough for you, frogs are amphibians, the world's oldest land vertebrates, with a pedigree going back more than 360-million years, long before dinosaurs stomped around the planet.

Other frog facts: The world's smallest is the Brazilian sapo-pulga, or flea frog, less than half an inch long (10 millimetres). The world's largest is the goliath frog, which can grow to a foot long (30 centimetres) and weigh more than three kilos! Both (of course) are endangered; the flea frog by pesticides, and the West African goliath by human appetite and loss of habitat.

On World Save the Frog Day, take action by raising the consciousness of local restaurants that serve wild frogs' legs, or take in Toronto's Frog Leap-a-Thon. Here's my favourite frog folly: Students at Texas Tech will go for a Guinness World Record by organizing the largest gathering of people wearing frog masks ever.

Or you can just raise your frog flag high. Whatever, the frogs will thank you.

Of course, there's lots more frog-saving info at savethefrogs.com.

Save the frogs!

Worth mentioning

ROME. Italian researchers said yesterday they will dig up bones in a Florence convent to try to identify the remains of a Renaissance woman long believed to be the model for the Mona Lisa.

If successful, the research might help ascertain the identity of the woman depicted in Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece — a mystery that has puzzled scholars and art lovers for centuries and generated countless theories.

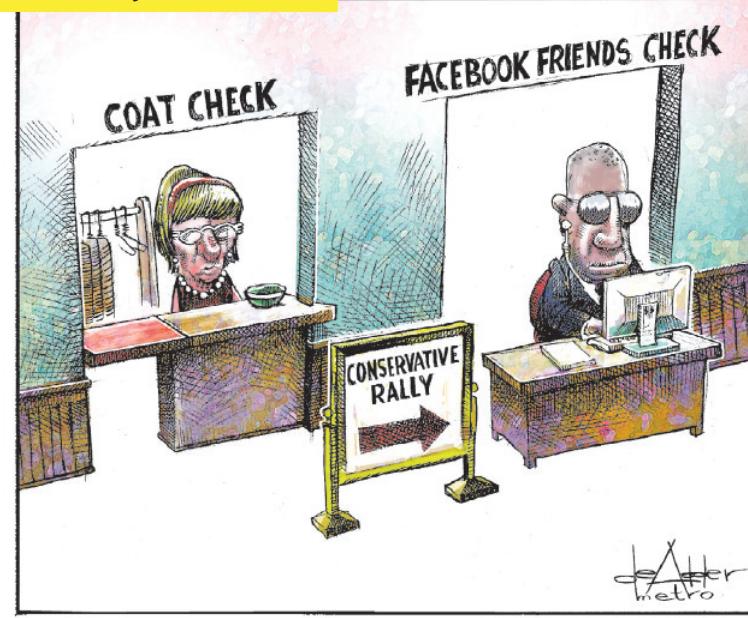

The project, launched yesterday, aims to locate the remains of Lisa Gherardini, the wife of a rich silk merchant named Francesco del Giocondo.

Tradition has long linked Gherardini to the painting, which is known in Italian as "La Gioconda" and in French as "La Joconde." Giorgio Vasari, a 16th-century artist and biographer of Leonardo, wrote that da Vinci painted a portrait of del Giocondo's wife.

Gherardini was born in 1479. A few years ago, an amateur Italian historian said he had found a death certificate showing she died July 15, 1542, and her final resting place is in central Florence.

As long as the marriage isn't a disaster

Honeymoons aren't always easy for newlyweds, but six natural disasters?

When Stefan and Erika Svanstrom of Stockholm set out on their four-month-long honeymoon with their baby girl on Dec. 6, they say they got more than they bargained for: Immediately, they were stranded in Munich, Germany, due to one of Europe's worst snowstorms, he said.

But that was just the beginning.

After that, he said, they experienced the devastation of a cyclone in Cairns, Australia, and the flooding in Brisbane, and narrowly escaped the bush fires in Perth.

"We escaped by the skin of our teeth," Svanstrom said, recalling how they were evacuated in Cairns and were forced to spend 24 hours on a cement floor in a shopping centre with 2,500 others.

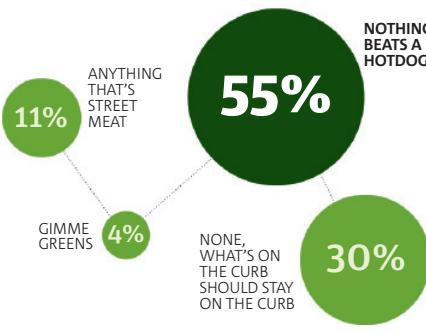

Just before they arrived in New Zealand, the 6.3-magnitude earthquake hit Christchurch and in Tokyo, they felt Japan's largest temblor since records began, he said.

Svanstrom said he also survived the devastating tsunami that hit southeast Asia in 2004.

BRANDING A REMAKE ROLE

It's a dangerous business trying to recapture movie magic, but Hollywood execs keep trying

Thirty years ago Dudley Moore introduced us to Arthur, a lovable but drunken millionaire playboy about to married to a wealthy heiress he did not love. "I race cars, play tennis, and fondle women," he said, "but I have weekends off, and I am my own boss."

The movie, Arthur, was a giant hit coming in fourth in the year's box office, earning four Oscar nods, winning two and spawning the number one hit Arthur's Theme (Best That You Can Do).

It's available on DVD and holds up very well, which is why it is a bit baffling that a remake of the same name is hitting theatres this weekend starring Russell Brand.

Remakes, of course, are nothing new. Hollywood has been recycling ideas since the beginning. For example, Cecil B. DeMille remade his own 1915 film The Golden Chance as Forbidden Fruit just six years later. The difference is that back then there was no portable archive of movies available on Blu Ray or streaming video. Older movies were essentially inaccessible to most people so a remake was simply good business. Take a good story, repackage it and hopefully do good at the box office. Later, in the pre-home video years, remakes were a way to breathe some life into older movies by giving their stories a facelift with modern stars.

But times have changed. Now, via Netflix, On-Demand and Blu Ray, it's easier and cheaper than ever to seek out and see movies like the original Arthur.

So what's the point of the remake?

Well, for one thing, it's a perfect role for the impish Russell Brand and, for another, it's always great to see his co-star Helen Mirren on screen. And who knows? Maybe it's better than the original. It wouldn't be the first time.

With so many remakes — past, present and future — perhaps philosopher Raoul Vaneigem was right when he said, "Our task is not to rediscover nature but to remake it."

A connection to his character

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

For comedian Russell Brand, updating the drunken, childish millionaire made famous by Dudley Moore 30 years ago in Arthur came naturally — perhaps a little too naturally.

"I'm such a thorough actor that I did two decades of research into alcoholism just to make sure it was 100 per cent right," jokes Brand, himself a recovering alcoholic and drug addict. "The difference of course is that Arthur is a fictional alcoholic and has much more latitude for clowning and fun, and often his adventures don't lead to broken glass and howling women."

But in updating the story for today — the immature Arthur must choose between marrying a cold but wealthy woman (Jennifer Garner) or follow his heart and lose everything — Brand was insistent that his character's bacchanalian style of living not be showing in a completely glamorous light.

"It was very important

Relationship

How being married helped him connect

► Character Of course, it wasn't just Arthur's penchant for a party that Brand identified with. Another, more recent change in his life — his relationship with and marriage to Katy Perry — also helped him connect to the material, since Arthur is caught off guard when he meets a not-so-wealthy young woman played by Greta Gerwig. "My life has been changed by falling in love, so I know that whilst that is a romantic idea and in this case fictional, it's something that has happened to me," Brand says. "That's why I'm so enamored of this story."

that we established a context where the alcoholism was humorous and good fun but was not irresponsibly portrayed," he says.

"This is 2011, and it's important to see a resolution to the problem of Arthur's alcoholism, and that's one of the aspects — as a recovering alcoholic myself, I was particularly happy with how that was rendered."

Playing opposite Greta Gerwig was a treat, Brand admits.

"We saw loads and loads of different actresses, which was all right — but of course I was already on the way to getting married then, so I couldn't enjoy it like the good old days, where auditions had a rather more primal quality," Brand jokes.

But there was something about Gerwig's reading that left an impression.

"Afterward I was sitting quietly and (director) Jason (Winer) said, 'Oh, what's the matter?' I said, 'I feel sad now that she's gone,'" Brand says. "And it's because I enjoyed playing with her. She has such a brilliant imagination, she's a great improviser with a wonderful understanding of comedy, a wide range of ideas, peculiar choices — but good peculiar."

Gerwig even admits that she's developed a serious crush on her co-star. Something Brand smarts at the notion of.

"Can't do nothing about it now. Just useless," he says. "Just a wonderful, useless thing, like a yacht in the middle of Idaho."

Those are the breaks in surfing

After a shark attack that lasted a few moments but claimed her arm, Bethany Hamilton went on to become a pro surfer, an inspiration and an author. Hamilton's pleased the film — based on her book — doesn't promote shark-phobia

METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

Bethany Hamilton shot to fame after her inspiring return to surfing following a shark attack that cost her her left arm in 2003. Now the 21-year-old Hawaiian native gets the surreal experience of watching her story recounted on screen in Soul Surfer.

Metro spoke with Hamilton about seeing her life on screen, getting her story told the right way and balancing movie responsibilities, her surfing schedule and charity work.

What was your reaction when you saw the finished film?

Seeing the final cut, I was just stoked. I was kind of just nervous what Hollywood would do with a true story. But my family and I being able to give input and feedback on the script really helped it just stay true to who we are and authentic.

What did you think of Anna-Sophia Robb, who plays you in the film?

AnnaSophia is amazing. I think she did so well just capturing who I am and my outlook on life. We became really good friends and got to hang out, and I taught her to surf. I think just by her getting to know me really just helped her show who I am to the world.

Was there any parts of the movie that were harder to watch than others?

No, I don't feel like I'm reliving it at all. And I've healed really well from everything, so it's been nice to not be so emotional and just be able to watch it and critique it and help it to be more accurate.

The shark attack, for example, really was very accurate to how it actually happened. It was just really quick — in and out of there real quick, and I didn't see anything. So I think that's kind of nice, because I didn't want to cause shark-phobia. I hope it doesn't scare people away from the water.

Your work with relief organization World Vision after the 2005 tsunami in Thailand plays a major part in the film. Have you been doing anything similar after the Japanese tsunami?

I've been tweeting about it a bit just to keep people's awareness and not to forget. So often when tragic stuff happens, it's like, "Oh no, look at this, this is awful!" And then you just forget the next day.

But I approached World Vision to see if I could go, but I don't know. I wish it was a different time, because I've always wanted to go to Japan, even before the tsunami. It's really sad. The Japanese people are just so beautiful.

Where are you in the pro surfing calendar now?

It just started. I had one event so far this year, which didn't go so well. I'm not really expecting much with all the distractions with the movie, but I'll still compete this year and hopefully get back into the groove of things soon.

► Pro surfer Bethany Hamilton's story is being told in the film Soul Surfer.

A critical hit at last year's Toronto International Film Festival, Jerzy Skolimowski's

Essential Killing features the year's most unique bit of casting: the infamous American actor and musician Vincent Gallo in a wordless performance as a Taliban fighter

"We knew each other from California," says the 72-year old filmmaker, a Buffalo, so I'm used to low temperatures and running barefoot through the snow. He wanted to do it."

The director says he'd hoped to do most of the shooting around his home in Poland, but that he couldn't count on enough snow and had to film a lot in Norway.

"Snow is the national product there."

When the film premiered last year in Venice

(where Gallo won the Best Actor prize) Skolimowski was bombarded with questions about whether or not the film was a political statement, but he maintains he had a different purpose in conceiving the story.

"For me, the most important thing is the process that turns a human being into a wild animal," he explains. "He's fighting for his life."

Chow down on Eat St.

► New series captures revolution in gourmet food, says host

Canadian comedian James Cunningham has noticed what he calls a "revolution" taking shape in North America's gourmet food world — mouth-wetting mobile meals.

As host of the Vancouver-produced series Eat St., debuting tonight on Food Network Canada, Cunningham has been travelling around the U.S. (with a stop in B.C. as well) for the past nine months to profile popular street eats.

Along the way, he's noticed that many food trucks and carts these days are far from your average greasy-spoon street stop — they're run by professional chefs serving comfort dishes with a gourmet edge.

"Either you sink a whole bunch of money into a restaurant, or you do what they did and get really creative and you open up a food truck and serve this great gourmet stuff to people on the street."

JAMES CUNNINGHAM, HOST OF EAT ST.

"With what's been happening with the economy ... we have all these great chefs looking for a way to bring their food to the people," the Toronto native said in a recent interview.

"Either you sink a whole bunch of money into a restaurant, or you do what they did and get really creative and you open up a food truck and serve this great gourmet stuff to people on the street.

"It's a gourmet restaurant without the restaurant."

The first episode of Eat St. (airing at 9:30 p.m.) opens with a profile of the Grilled Cheese Truck in Los Angeles, which has a rabid following and a menu that includes the Cheesy Mac&Rib (with southern-style macaroni and cheese, pulled smoked pork and caramelized onions) and the Brie Melt (made on cranberry-walnut bread with sliced pears and honey).

Then it's off to Austin, Tex., to visit two stationary trailers — Izzoz Tacos and the G'Raj Mahal, which serves authentic Goan dishes from Goa, India. The final stop is Schnitzel & Things, a mobile food truck in New York City.

Streeteeries profiled in upcoming episodes include a lobster cart, a pulled-pork truck and a mobile converted school bus that serves classic French cuisine, including escargot and French onion tart.

Wells' film filled with good company men

PHIL BROWN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

This week John Wells makes his feature filmmaking debut with The Company Men, a passionate, tragic — and ultimately uplifting — story about the painful unemployed limbo that has sadly befallen so many during the current recession.

Surprisingly, the writing veteran of TV series like E.R. and The West Wing, started work on the film a decade ago, even though it now hits a little closer to home.

"I started writing the screenplay during the dot com bust after my sister's husband and about 5,000 other people suddenly lost their jobs on a Tuesday," Wells said. "I went online and asked if anyone had any stories or anecdotes to share as research for my screenplay and got a couple thousand responses within a weekend. But by the time I turned the screenplay into the studio that recession was over and they said, 'Nobody is going to want to see a movie about that.'

Wells' film follows a variety of characters at all levels of the economic spectrum, from CEOs making cost-cutting decisions, to engineers who find themselves working construction. The timely script attracted an impressive cast, including Ben Affleck, Tommy Lee Jones and Chris Cooper, but despite the considerable talent involved, Wells made his movie independently.

"Seven to 10 years ago, I think somebody would have made this film in the studio system, but these kinds of films are being made very rarely in Hollywood today," he said. "The studios want to ensure that they can do foreign business and that leads them to easily translatable projects like action movies, animation and science fiction. I certainly go to see those movies, but there needs to be a place for films like The Company Men."

Captain America set to make dramatic return

► Marvel's Steve Rogers to don the suit, shield again

The original Cap is coming back.

Marvel Comics said Monday that Steve Rogers, the young man who tried but failed to join the Army during the Second World War only to take a super-soldier serum that turned him into the agile, strong and daring Captain America, will return to the role in Captain America No. 1 in July.

Nearly four years ago, Rogers abandoned the costume, and the job, after he was gunned down on the steps of a courthouse and thought dead. Since then, his former sidekick, Bucky, has been sporting the shield and a sidearm, too.

But with a new film this summer from Marvel Studios — Captain America: The First Avenger — it's unthinkable to have someone else wearing the costume and throwing the shield other than Rogers.

Marvel is keeping mum about the new series' story but said it is being written by Ed Brubaker, who has been guiding the character for years.

An interactive attraction featuring gangster memorabilia and commentary from film mobsters James Caan, Mickey Rourke and Frank Vincent opened last week on the Las Vegas Strip. For Las Vegas, the attractions represent an unprecedented embrace of its infamous founders.

"What differentiates us

The desert oasis made famous by scantily-clad showgirls, ubiquitous slot machines and 24-hour happy hours has long celebrated its reputation as a haven

The Tropicana casino and hotel, a one-time hangout for organized crime now more known for its bargain-counter room rates, celebrated its new "Mob Experience" attraction last week with a red carpet party attended by the son of Tony "The Ant" Spilotro, the inspiration for the bloodthirsty Joe Pesci character in Casino.

The sprawling casino attraction features the diary of mobster Meyer Lansky, Spilotro's gun and family photos and home movies from other infamous criminals.

Visitors are greeted by life-size holograms of chatty gangsters and a chance to get "made."

The publicly-funded mob museum, meanwhile, is slated to open in December at a downtown Las Vegas courthouse where a detailed mob hearing that helped expose organized crime to ordinary Americans was held in 1950.

The $42 million museum started as an effort to save one of Las Vegas' few historic buildings. It's amassed a wide collection of gangster artifacts, including the wall from Chicago's St. Valentine's Day massacre, the only gun recovered at the mass shooting and the barber chair where hit man Albert Anastasia's life came to an end in 1957.

Travel in brief

Tips on how to deal with long car trips.

- Pack several different entertainment items suited for each child. When they tire of one, they can move on to the next.
- Pack healthy snacks that your kids enjoy. Time travels more slowly when you're hungry.
- Stop and smell the roses: scenic look-outs and picnic areas are great places to let kids burn off some of that boundless energy.
- Old favourites: time flies when you're doing group activities like singing songs together, playing I Spy or seeing how many provincial and state licence plates you can count.

Acapulco's a draw for good reasons

John Wayne slept here.

And so did Tarzan, or at least Johnny Weissmuller, the man who created the famous yodelling call used by every successive loincloth-clad, vine-swinger in Hollywood.

"Here" is Los Flamingos, a tiny pinkwashed stucco hotel, perched about 275 metres above the Pacific Ocean, on the edge of the cliffs that form part of Acapulco's Old Town.

"This way, that's Tarzan's round house," says Carlos Serrano, the cab driver who brought me to one of the symbols of what Acapulco once was — a playground for the rich, the famous and, most of all, for Hollywood stars.

Weissmuller, an Olympic gold-medal-winning swimmer, wasn't the first Tarzan, but he became the best known and played Edgar Rice Burroughs' jungle-raised ape man in a dozen films. The cool wind off the Pacific, even on a 30-degree-plus day, is a reminder of why the location was great in an age before air conditioning. Now however, all the action has moved down the hill directly to the bay itself.

There, and at the Diamante resort area just southeast of Acapulco proper, are the huge hotels, condominiums and time-shares that still swell Acapulco's native population with thousands of visitors.

It's easy to see the attraction the ancient city on the Pacific holds for visitors. Checking the winter weather forecast seems pointless when the chances are 10-to-1 it will be 30 and sunny. OK, sometimes it's 32 and sunny.

Acapulco is a city of ups and downs once you move away from Costera Miguel Aleman, the broad boulevard choked with traffic that runs along the beach. There are hillside discos where you can dance the night away and first-class restaurants that show off Mexican and international cuisine. THE CANADIAN PRESS

From TV to book-stores

Kary Osmond knows her way around the kitchen and has been familiar with culinary undertakings since she was six.

"I helped in my parents' Ukrainian deli in Mississauga (west of Toronto) getting platters ready for banquets and other events," says the 32-year-old host of CBC TV's show Best Recipes Ever, which airs weekdays at 3 p.m.

It's a gig Osmond has aspired to for years. She always dreamed of having a cooking school or show.

After graduating from the chef program at Toronto's George Brown College, she landed a position at a Toronto restaurant.

In her spare time she was an avid viewer of the Food Network Canada and Canadian Living Cooks. So it was fortuitous that she would be chosen for Best Recipes Ever.

Coincidentally, Osmond takes advantage of Canadian Living Magazine's vast vault of recipes and mealtime solutions on the show.

Busy cooks can now also find many of those same recipes in one collection entitled Best Recipes Ever: Easy, Affordable, Healthy Meal Solutions for Everyday Occasions (Transcontinental Books, $29.95, paperback). It showcases all of the recipes featured on the show's first and second seasons. Cooks will find recipes for everything from appetizers to desserts. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mushrooms to bring out love?

LARRY CROWE/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► This stroganoff is great served over brown or red rice as well as mashed potatoes or the more traditional noodles.

Spicy Moroccan soup, South African bobotie, lentil curry from Nepal, even Mexican burritos.

When you're looking to cook up some vegetarian love, the world's cuisines offer plenty of ways to stimulate the senses.

"It's a lovely way to do it, especially if you've been somewhere and you want to recreate a magical moment," says Troth Wells, author of One World Vegetarian Cookbook.

Oysters and steak with bearnaise have long been the standard for "romantic" meals.

But Wells says the inherent sensuality of vegetables will tickle the senses without leaving you too full to frolic after.

And then there are the spices. Considered aphrodisiacs by many ancient cultures, spices such as nutmeg are said to increase amorous function. Chili releases endorphins, while cinnamon, cardamom and cloves have historically been considered erotic scents.

"Like diamonds and perfume, anything that's expensive and requires some dangerous exploits to get it has some sexual excitement to it," she says.

Mushroom Stroganoff

Preparation:

1 In a large skillet over medium-high, heat oil. Add onion and sauté for 4 minutes. Add garlic and sauté for another 30 seconds.

2 Increase heat to high and add mushrooms, paprika and nutmeg.

Sauté for 10 minutes or until mushrooms are soft and brown.

3 Add wine and balsamic vinegar, stir well. Bring to a simmer reduce heat and cook for 5 minutes. Stir in cilantro, then creme fraîche. Season with salt and pepper. Serve over rice, mashed potatoes or noodles.

How to make that PowerPoint pop

► Click, click, click, snooze? ► Keep your colleagues awake with these tips on perfecting the work presentation

When the moment comes to deliver a sales pitch or propose a project, all too many speech-shy professionals fall back on what may be the modern world's most tedious way to present an idea: PowerPoint.

Speech coaches say there's no better tool for turning a slide show into a drag.

"I myself like PowerPoint, I just don't like what people do with it," laments Elayne Snyder, public speaking expert. "They put a whole bunch of stuff up on the screen, which is the worse thing there is to do."

Cramming your slides with fine text could make your PowerPoint feel powerless. To avoid the temptation, script your speech on a scrap of paper.

"Don't put together your presentation in PowerPoint," speech coach Patricia Fripp recommends. "Build it on a pad of paper, a white board, or on a flip chart, and then ask yourself, where absolutely must I add the PowerPoint?"

With a good script, you might be surprised how little you need it.

"If you're engaging the audience, and you're telling a story, you won't need PowerPoint," she says. "But if you're looking to illustrate a point, you might want to have a chart, or a graph, or a dia-

LUBLINIS AN EMPLOYMENT LAWYER
WITH WHITTEN & LUBLIN LLP.DAN@CANADA

Here is one story that should give people pause when they are offered legal services over the Internet.

Recently, a couple came to me seeking a second opinion following a dispute with a temporary contractor they hired, or so they thought. They had found a lawyer online, selling precedent "contracts" at a discount. Since this couple was new to their business, they were unfortunately drawn to this lawyer's website, believing they would get a solid product without spending money on a lawyer's time.

The couple explained that they had sought to hire an individual contractor to complete a few tasks. After that, they would not need him anymore. They swiftly purchased one of this lawyer's "contracts" online and gave it to the individual to sign, not realizing that what they had purchased was much different from what they actually needed the contractor to sign.

After he had completed his tasks within the first six months, the contractor's job was done. No problem there. However, the contract they had signed guaranteed him one year's worth of work. Even though the individual was no longer needed, when the couple attempted to end his employment early, he demanded pay for the remaining six months, arguing that his contract was for a defined term.

The problem is that the contract they bought online did not allow them to end the job early without paying for the remaining time on the contract (something that most employment lawyers should spot as a matter of course) and, worse yet, the lawyer who sold it to them had not bothered to discuss that with them, since they never even met! As this couple now owed the contractor twice the fee they initially expected to pay him, the "contract" they bought ultimately cost them much more than they paid for it. The full article can be read online at metronews.ca.

Spezza lights up floundering Flyers

► Ottawa forward has goal, three assists ► Flyers fall out of first place overall in Eastern Conference

Jason Spezza scored once and added three assists last night as the Ottawa Senators defeated the slumping Philadelphia Flyers 5-2.

Spezza's 20th goal of the season came on the power play at 8:02 of the third to give Ottawa a 4-2 lead. The Senators scored three times with the man advantage before an announced crowd of 18,397 at Scotiabank Place.

Ryan Shannon and Bobby Butler had a goal and an assist each, while Nick Foligno and Milan Michalek, into an empty net, rounded out the scoring for Ottawa (31-39-10). Filip Kuba added two assists.

Butler scored at even strength on a breakaway late in the second period to give the Senators a 3-2 lead.

Ottawa has won two of the past three and four of the past five at Scotiabank Place to improve a poor home record to 15-20-5.

Craig Anderson made 27 saves, sending the Flyers (46-23-11) to their fourth loss in a row and fifth in the past six games.

Mike Richards scored both goals for Philadelphia, which failed to clinch the Atlantic Division title with the loss and the Pittsburgh Penguins' 4-2 win over the New Jersey Devils.

The Flyers also fell out of first place overall in the Eastern Conference and now trail Washington by two points. THE CANADIAN PRESS

THE HOCKEY NEWS

SENS SHOULD HOPE FOR PICK IN TOP FOUR

The Ottawa Senators have not assured themselves a bottom-five finish in the NHL standings yet, but their chances of having at least an opportunity to secure the first pick overall are looking pretty positive.

The Senators went into last night's game against the Philadelphia Flyers holding down the 27th spot in the league, which would have them seeded fourth for the draft lottery. That would give them a 10.7 per cent chance of winning the lottery and choosing first overall for the first time since 1996. If they could somehow move in arrears of the Florida Panthers, they'd have the third seed and their chances of choosing first would increase to 14.2 per cent.

But even if the Senators run the table and win out in the regular season, the worst they'd be seeded is sixth.

But chances are they'll be in the top five and for their sake, hopefully the top four. And that is important because there are four prospects in most observers' minds who have set themselves apart this season and by finishing 27th or worst, the Senators would assure themselves of having a chance of selecting one of those players.

Edmonton has already assured itself of last place and will likely pick first overall. They'll have to choose between a slick centre in Ryan-Nugent Hopkins and a top-flight defenceman in Adam Larsson of Sweden. The Colorado Avalanche, if they were second, would likely take whomever Edmonton doesn't take, but there's a chance they could go with centre Gabriel Landeskog of the Kitchener Rangers.

None of the three is considered a bad choice by most NHL scouts and where they are drafted might depend on what the team needs. Ironically, Nugent-Hopkins might go first and not be ready to play in the NHL next season, whereas both Larsson and Landeskog are seen as much more NHL-ready.

So if the Senators do manage to pick fourth, their choice will almost certainly come down to one of two hulking Quebec Major Junior Hockey League centres — either Sean Couturier of the Drummondville Voltigeurs or Jonathan Huberdeau of the St. John Sea Dogs.

Both have put up impressive numbers this season and represent the big centre every team covets. Whomever the Senators get, they can be assured of adding a very solid prospect to their fold.

Now all they have to do is make it happen in the last week of the season.

Engine performance

A mix of new and old can be found beneath the Touareg's freshly formed hood. A 280-horsepower 3.6-litre V6 (TSI) carries over as the base gasoline engine.

Still optional is a 225-horsepower 3.0-litre V6 turbo-diesel (TDI) that makes 406 pound-feet of torque.

The TDI is rated at 11.9 l/100 km in the city and 8.0 on the highway, compared with 12.3/8.8 l/100 km for the TSI.

Wider, shorter and lighter

The Touareg is now a bit wider, but shorter than before and has been stretched by about 3.8 centimetres between the front and rear wheels.

However, the greatest singular advancement is in the 160 kilograms that have been excised from the vehicle. Most of the seven-per-cent weight reduction comes from lightening the platform and powertrain as well as a number of key suspension components that are now constructed of aluminum.

4MOTION

All Touaregs come standard with VW's dual-range 4MOTION all-wheel-drive setup that in normal driving situations maintains a 40:60 front-to-rear torque bias. The system also features a locking centre differential that fixes the torque split to maximize traction over slippery terrain.

For 2011, Comfortline, Highline and Executive trim levels are offered. All feature a wealth of luxury content.

gen, regardless of how proficient it is at churning up the sod.

These folks can cross-shop VW's Audi offshoot for the five-passenger, V6-equipped Q5 sport ute that offers upscale brand name cachet for about the same price as a new Touareg.

Fortunately VW has managed to attract sufficient fans of the marque to invest in an updated second-generation wagon that wraps its rugged underpinnings in a more attractive package.

Now that the slimmed-down Touareg has also been made more attractive and less thirsty, Volkswagen can likely expect more look-sees and a less of the Rodney Dangerfield treatment.

Rodney Dangerfield famously complained that he never received a scintilla of respect.

In terms of overall popularity, the Volkswagen Touareg has had the same issue with its 2004-model-year launch.

Perhaps it's the nearly unpronounceable name (Touareg, or Twah-regg, refers to a nomadic Sahara-dwelling tribe), its low-key styling or a price tag that outdistances many of its luxury competitors.

But it could also be that people shopping for vehicles in this bracket are reluctant to spend in excess of 50 large for a Volkswa-

Touareg

What you should know about the 2011 Volkswagen Touareg:

- Engine (hp): 3.6-litre DOHC V6 (280); 3.0-litre DOHC V6, turbo-diesel (225).
- Transmission: Eight-speed automatic.
- Market position: The Touareg slots into the mid-luxury group of sport utility vehicles that includes both genuine off-road-capable vehicles plus so-called soft-roaders that function well in poor weather and/or poor road conditions.

EVERYONE LEARNS FROM MISTAKES, RIGHT?

CONTRIBUTED

Auto Pilot

MIKE GOETZ

DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Humans learn from mistakes — it's part of our survival strategy. This is why disco only happened once, aided of course, by John Travolta's inability to squeeze back into his white pants.

The meltdown of the auto industry in 2008 wasn't entirely the industry's fault, but its subsequent reincarnation affords us an opportunity to see if it, too, has the ability to learn from past missteps.

It obviously had to downsize to meet lower "recession-style" demand, and in cases like Chrysler and GM, just to stay afloat.

But even with modest sales in 2009, lots of automakers turned nice profits. With lower operating costs they didn't have to sell so many units, and by not "over producing" they didn't have to sell those vehicles at "fire sale" prices. Not only is this a better profit model, it's better for the automaker's long-term brand image and health. Can they stick to this plan?

The telltale signs of oversupply are incentives — zero per cent financing, manufacturer rebates, employee pricing, bobble-head dolls for the first 1,000 customers. Automakers don't like incentives, but it's hard to look the other way, when you got product piling up and/or competitors eating your lunch. We're seeing more and more incentives creep back into the market, including many now based on fuel discounts.

Short-term fix or a slippery slope? We'll see. I think most automakers are just trying to adjust to the softer-than-expected rebound of the economy.

Many are sticking to their guns, however, about not "over producing." GM, for example, had a problem keeping up with Chevrolet Equinox and GMC Terrain demand. Both are built at the company's plant in Ingersoll, Ont. But instead of throwing big money at another plant, it addressed the situation with two shrewd moves — adding an Equinox/Terrain line at its Oshawa facility, and introducing the Chevy Captiva, a "fleet only" Mexican-built crossover based on the recently departed Saturn Vue.

Another automaker lesson learned since 2008, is don't alienate your suppliers. When automakers downsized, the supplier community suffered collateral damage. The automakers didn't shed too many tears over this, but now that they're in recovery mode and need more parts, the auto parts suppliers aren't too quick to shake hands and make nice.

And then there is the leasing lesson: Ford, GM and Chrysler and others stopped leasing vehicles even before 2008, as they failed to manage the risks of using low, monthly leasing payments to move vehicles off lots. To get low leasing rates, they had to artificially inflate the value of what the vehicle would be worth as a used vehicle at lease end. The automakers' in-house leasing companies were often on the hook for these discrepancies, which was exacerbated by a big batch of identical cars entering the used market at the same time, further depressing values.

Ford, GM and Chrysler are, or will soon be, tipping their toes back into leasing, and we wonder how disciplined they will be this time around.

I'm guessing, way more disciplined, but you never know.

Mazda 'brand strategy' is all in the SKY

DRIVING FORCE

JIL MCINTOSH
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Cars may be easy to operate, but they're incredibly complex machines. As automakers make them more fuel-efficient and reduce their emissions, they must consider that complexity and how to make changes that will affect the whole vehicle.

Mazda is addressing the challenge with SKYACTIV, a multi-faceted approach that includes engine, transmission and body structure technologies. Rather than focusing on a single vehicle, SKYACTIV is a long-term plan that will eventually benefit all of the company's models.

The first improvements will roll out on the 2012 Mazda3.

"It's our philosophy that we want our solution to benefit all Mazda customers, not just a sliver," says Robert Davis, Mazda's North American Operations Senior VP of R&D. "It's a brand strategy, not a model strategy."

The technologies include improved transmissions, lighter weight, lower-cost manufacturing, and engines that combine higher compression and direct gasoline injection to create the "perfect combustion moment" — getting maximum energy from the fuel with minimal waste.

► The 2012 Mazda3 sedan (pictured) and hatchback will be the first to feature some of the new SKYACTIV program.

It's still important to focus on internal combustion engines (ICE) that use gasoline or diesel, even as automakers work toward electric vehicles.

"In the marketplace where we compete, 99.99 percent (of vehicles) are sold with ICEs," Davis says.

"Even today's hybrids all have ICEs. For us, the logical choice was to start there and work our way out. SKYACTIV allows us to do this with gasoline and diesel, so whether it's a Mazda2 or MX-5, it has the same environmental commitment, as opposed to a customer who

Manufacturing

- While not generally considered part of fuel efficiency, manufacturing plays a role.
- Optimal production techniques can reduce costs on fuel-efficient technologies that may otherwise be too expensive.
- Mazda's SKYACTIV transmission improvements include a system that allows both automatic and manual transmissions to be built on the same assembly line, which saves money.

has a hybrid and a pickup truck."

A major challenge with technology is keeping it affordable, especially with weight, where Mazda's goal is a net reduction of 100 kilograms over the previous model.

"Eighty per cent of the target is based on making it lighter and stronger, 12 per cent is based on changes to size, and 8 per cent is based on the use of lightweight materials," Davis says. "The bulk of the body structure changes are in design and not in materials. Remember, we sell cars in the mainstream. I would love to put carbon fibre roofs on our cars, but it's not appropriate for us; our customers can't afford that solution."

"We'll get to the point where we have to use lightweight materials in the future, but like the ICE, we have to sharpen our pencils in other places before we go there."

‘The best car nobody’s ever heard of’

► Volvo C30 owners seem unanimously impressed

SECOND GEAR

 JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

The C30 is Volvo's compact three-door hatch, which the Swedish automaker launched on Canadian shores for 2007 to battle the likes of the Audi A3, Mini Cooper, VW GTI, Mercedes-Benz and others.

Available solely as a four-seat model with front-wheel drive, the C30 brought Volvo's reputation for safety, uniqueness and refinement into the upscale hatch segment. In the used market, shoppers can consider one of two engines for their C30. Standard was a 2.4-litre inline five-cylinder

What's the 4-1-1

- Vehicle Type: Three-door hatch
- Approximate used price range: $16,000 to $26,000 backed by a five-speed manual or five-speed automatic. This particular C30 designation was named the “2.4i,” and it developed 168 horsepower.

The C30 “T5” got a turbocharged 2.5-litre five-cylinder engine, good for 218 horsepower and fitted with a six-speed manual. Newer models got a slightly-increased 227 horsepower. Available or standard feature content included a tilt and telescoping steering wheel, a sunroof, automatic climate control, Volvo's unique waterfall console, antilock brakes, full power accessories, a driver computer, and an 8-speaker stereo with satellite radio.

What Owners Like

Ride and handling are almost unanimously highly rated amongst C30 owners.

Phrases like “fun to drive,” “exciting” and “sporty” were frequently used as descriptors. Shifter feel and a solid, nicely-trimmed cabin are also raved about. One owner in an online forum even called the C30 “the best car nobody's ever heard of.”

What Owners Hate

Heavy doors, a long reach for the seatbelts and hefty fuel consumption with the turbo engine are the more typical owner complaints.

Some owners also wish for an extra set of doors for easier access to the rear seats.

Common Issues

The C30 isn't a sales superstar — so the availability of consumer-reported reliability information from the usual sources is fairly sparse.

In checks of the usual online forums, things on the dependability front looked fairly solid.

Some digging revealed age-related complaints about broken floor-mat anchors, easily-chipped paint, a ratty rear window, and a trim-piece around the parking brake that often becomes loose. Nothing major.

Avoid any model with a manual transmission that exhibits grinding or slippage, which could indicate a problem with the clutch or gearbox.

The Verdict

End of the day, a well-maintained C30 should prove unique, fun, enjoyable and reliable.
